

New: Automatic Updates!

We are pleased to announce that beginning with version 3.8, QuickFile will now check to see if a newer version is available. When QuickFile finds a newer version, a message will appear asking you if you want to download it now. If you answer yes, the download will begin immediately. You will no longer be required to open a web browser and go our website to update your software.

Once the download is complete, the update will begin to install, and the only action required by you is to follow the prompts to complete the installation. In addition to the automatic updates, we will now use download manager technology to make downloading software easier, faster, and more reliable than ever.

If your internet connection is lost while you are downloading software from our servers, or if the download is terminated, our new download manager will give you the option to resume your download the next time you start QuickFile. You will no longer need to re-start the download from the beginning.

There is nothing for you to install or run. Just start an automatic update from QuickFile or QuickQuote, or begin downloading software from the QuickQuote website, and the rest is done automatically.

We hope you enjoy these improvements to QuickFile.... We're looking forward to helping you increase your productivity as we continue to develop QuickFile with your agency's workflow in mind.
